QUALITY SEEDLINGS — TRANSPLANTED LINERS

FALL 1960 - SPRING 1961

Northern Grown Stock

If it is grown in northern Michigan you know it is hardy anywhere. But there is much more to it than just being hardy.

Our ground is frozen solid almost every winter. Spring thawing permits digging some time between March 30 and April 13. That is late spring for most of our customers.

The advantage of our late growing season lies in our stock remaining dormant until quite late in your spring planting season. Our stock will arrive at your nursery with no growth at all and can be handled and planted while still dormant. This when stock growing in your own area may have inches of new growth. You can safely and economically plant our stock a little later.

And, too, we have a natural sandy loam soil. To this we add many 20-ton loads of peat moss and disk in heavy green crops. All of which makes our seedlings and transplanted stock grow with an abundance of fiber roots on every tree.

All trees are grown under irrigation. Our watering and fertilizing practice permits the tree roots to develop nearer the surface. So fed the volume of fiber roots develop close to the tree stem.

Trees are lifted from undercut, loosened soil. The well developed roots come quite damage free, as is easily seen in any crate of trees we ship.

AS WE SEE IT

- The stock offered is the product of several years of planned work on improvement in nursery practices and economy in the many operations that enter into growing trees.
- In Yews the sizes are a little bigger; also we have added 3 yr. bedded cutting grown varieties, permanently on our list, we expect.
- Prices are a little lower, some sharply down, a result of above mentioned economies we can now pass on to you.
- In every grade, size and kind the stock is as heavy or stronger and is well rooted.
- In some grades, as in 3-0 Scotch Auvergne, the much heavier stock this year carries a lower price than last year's smaller trees.
- All prices include packing costs; all listed f.o.b. Harbor Springs, Michigan.
